

A Suit that Stays Shapely

Did you know that the permanence of the good appearance of a Suit depends upon the honesty with which the hidden parts are made? Manufacturers tell us we are too particular as to the canvas used, the interlinings of the collars and reverses and the stitchings. But they have to come up to our requirements or we don't keep them. If for no other reasons, this store should receive your first consideration when looking for a Suit. But there are other reasons—the makers of a great many of our garments have fashion bureaus in Paris and artists constantly designing new models; so you are positively sure of getting the very newest ideas; many of them several months in advance of other manufacturers. As for the price—well, when we tell you we have had customers from as far north as Burlington and as far south as Claremont, the prices must be right—we know they are.

"THE DEVIL"

A Word About Origin of Play Coming Thursday Night.

About every ten years the history of the stage shows that there comes some particular play which, out of all proportion, attracts the theatre-goer beyond all its competitors. "The Devil" was such a play. "The Devil" was a recent result in a musical way. More recently "The Merry Widow" has swept over the civilized world and now comes Franz Molnar's Hungarian play "The Devil."

When the news of "The Devil" success in Budapest first reached this country, nearly every American manager immediately called his foreign representative to secure the rights for this country. Henry W. Savage, however, who was in Europe at the time, forestalled all these efforts. It is his production that will be seen at the opera house Thursday, October 15th.

It will be presented by a splendid company by permission of Mr. Savage, who insists that cast and production shall be equal in every way to the home company now turning crowds away nightly at the Garden theatre.
